
Health and Safety Policy Statement

The Health and Safety at Work of Employees

The purpose of the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 is to promote, stimulate and encourage high standards of health and safety at work.

It is a principal objective to involve everybody at work in creating awareness of the importance of achieving high standards of health and safety. Both employers and employees are under a duty to take reasonable care for the health and safety of people at work and it is vital that the co-operation of everyone within the Company is obtained.

The Company recognises its responsibility and so far as lay within its power will make every reasonable effort to ensure compliance with both the spirit and the letter of the law.

The main concern is the prevention of accidents and of damage to health. The need for safety applies to all areas of the Company's activities, whether on its own or client's premises, in office, manufacturing, warehousing, retail, hotel, private or any other premises or outside locations where the Company is involved.

The Company recognises that it is obliged to observe and fully co-operate with clients' own directives concerning health and safety at work where the Group's own employees are engaged in carrying out duties on clients' premises.

It is the intention of the Company that all employees shall be made aware of safety procedures and receive training as appropriate in safe working practices. To this end, as and considered necessary, training programmes covering health and safety legislation, first aid, new machinery and any other required areas will be held.
